Orlando Entrepreneur Resumes BizForRent.com Website After Hurricane Frances Central Florida Based Internet Business Survives Second Hurricane In Three Weeks

ORLANDO, Florida — September 6, 2004 — Hi-Tech and Hurricanes don't mix well. Just ask entrepreneur Daniel Thompson president of BizForRent.com a website that lists “commercial properties for lease” that is based in hurricane ravaged Central Florida.

After Hurricane Charley Mr. Thompson was faced with the tough decision to shut down operations temporarily until Hurricane Frances passed over Orlando.

We have backup systems in place to keep our systems running during power and Internet outages.” said Thompson “However, after surviving Hurricane Charley we decided to shut down and secure our data center until the Hurricane’s Eye passed completely out of Central Florida.”

As of Sunday night September 5, 2004 BizForRent.com is now back online and available to service visitors’ requests to locate commercial properties for lease.

Said Thompson “We are grateful that the only impact to our business was that we had to shut down temporarily as a precautionary measure. However, Hurricane Ivan is still only a week away from us so we will have to remain vigilant.”
